 THE LISTENING TAPESCRIPT

From: <http://www.listenAminute.com/f/famine.html>

There is no way that famine should be a problem in today's world. We are so rich. Companies have billions of dollars. Countries have trillions. It's a real shame that people do not give enough to help famine victims. It's a sin. There is more than enough food in this world to feed everyone. Government leaders need to tell the world why they let people die of hunger. Even the United Nations can't persuade governments to give enough money to help the starving. Of course, there are good governments and bad ones. The bad ones often let their own people starve. The leaders steal the country's money. Some countries have a famine but their state TV tells people there are bumper crops. That's shocking.
